Hale, Sarah Josepha Buell <1788-1879>

Conversations on the Burman mission / by a lady of New Hampshire. – Boston: Massachusetts Sabbath School Union, 1830. 160 p. – Rev. by the Publishing Committee. – Spine title: Burman mission. – This title has been attributed to Sarah Josepha Hale, who used the pseudonym "A lady of New Hampshire" early in her career, but is more likely to be the work of Sarah Tuttle, who wrote the other books in the series of Conversations on missions. There seems to be no direct evidence to link the work conclusively with either author.

Abstract: The materials of the following little work were chiefly drawn from the American Baptist magazine, and the Memoir of Mrs. Judson. For some of the facts, touching the first American missionaries to the heathen, the author has consulted the introduction to the sermon of the Rev. Dr. Woods, delivered on the occasion of their departure from this country in 1812. It will be remembered that she writes for the young. – Preface, dated at Exeter, N.H., July 14, 1830.

Henderson, Michael <b. 1932>

Abstract: How could survivors of the Burma Road, the Siberian Gulag, or Nazi atrocities forgive those who harmed them? How can representatives of entire peoples - Australian Aborigines, African-Americans, black South Africans - be reconciled with whites who exploited them? And how can the offenders find the grace to apologize? Michael Henderson writes about dozens of people of many nations and faiths who have been able to break the chain of hate and hold of history. - Book jacket.

Abstract: Imprisoned for political reasons in the 1950’s (and later), Ludu U Hla - perhaps Burma’s most prolific modern author and collector of Burmese folklore and cultural material - penned these sensitive portraits of his teenage fellow-behind-bars. His sympathetic probe of "criminals" old and new, willing and unwilling, uncovers the social pressures and failings that turn the weak, the young and unfortune-ate against society, and harden them in a career of crime. This book won a UNESCO prize in 1958.

ISBN 1863735798

Abstract.: Four Thousand Bowls of Rice tells how one prisoner of war prepared himself, mentally and physically, for his journey home after three and a half years of brutal captivity in Java, Burma and Thailand during World War II. Staff Sergeant Cecil Dickson was a member of the 2/2 Australian Pioneer Battalion, which was forced to surrender to the Japanese in March 1942. His engineering unit bore the heaviest work in constructing the Burma-Thailand Railway.

Sergeant Dickson was also a journalist, and within days of his release in August 1945, he began writing a series of letters to his wife back in Melbourne, as he anxiously awaited final transport orders. Drawing on these letters, and her research with many surviving Pioneers, Linda Goetz Holmes paints a dramatic picture of prisoner of war life under the Japanese. Dickson's letters are yesterday's version of the "live-remote" coverage one expects to find on today's newscast.

Through his words, the reader discovers what it felt like to emerge abruptly from one day's starvation to the next day's air-drops, and from being in regimented captivity to being in charge of one's own time again. More significantly, Dickson's writings provide a unique glimpse of one man's determination to free his mind from continued captivity by replacing bitter memories with the sights and sounds of postwar Bangkok, and with tender thoughts of reunion with loved ones.

While Dickson's letters provide the sound track, it is the series of photographs, taken secretly by other Australian prisoners, which give shape to this vivid picture of POW life. Published here for the first time, these daring close-ups of gaunt faces and ravaged bodies leave the reader with an unforgettable personal statement of suffering - and triumph.

Abstract: Airpower in the early part of the twentieth century was dominated by the development and demonstration of the power of the strategic bomber and the high performance fighter. Yet, airlift, one of the last elements of airpower to emerge from this era, proved to be one of the most instrumental in our nation.

Abstract: Tree volume prediction equations for various groupings of tree species were developed using data from the Forest Survey and Inventory Project of Myanmar (Burma). Three regression models were evaluated, one based on actual volume, one based on standing tree volume, and one combining information from standing tree and actual volume. The third model was found to be the best, but this model requires felled tree data which may not be practical to obtain. Several methods of aggregating tree species were also considered. Finally, the aggregation methods and volume prediction results were applied to the Myanmar data to develop tree volume prediction equations for various tree species groups.
